

Daisy

Daisies have small flowers with white petals and a yellow centre.

Dandelion

Dandelions have long-lobed leaves and yellow or orange flowers on a single stem. In summer, the flower may form white seed heads called "clocks", which disperse in the wind.

Common nettle

Nettles have large, broad, dark green leaves, with a jaggy edge, and tiny defensive hairs that can sting. Their flowers are arranged in long, dangling strands.

Ribwort plantain

Ribwort plantains have long, narrow, dark green leaves that are lightly covered in hairs. They produce short heads of greenish or brown flowers on top of long stems.

Greater plantain

Greater plantains have broad oval or rounded leaves that often lie flat against the ground. They have a long narrow spike of flowers on a tough stem.

Hawthorn

Hawthorns are spiny shrubs or small trees with deeply divided, bright green leaves. They typically have white flowers that later turn into red berries.

Bluebell

Bluebells have narrow leaves and tube-like, dark blue scented flowers with up-rolled tips.

Red clover

Red clover has dark pink flowers and leaves with three oval leaflets that have white "V" marks on them.
